

Department of Corrections

General Overview

The Department of Corrections (DOC) is responsible for over 50,000 prisoners in prisons, prison camps, boot camps, and community placement centers. Prisoners are separated by gender and security level in the facilities that make up the state corrections system. The DOC provides room, board, and health care for all prisoners, as well as mental health care, substance abuse treatment, education and work, for offenders placed in its jurisdiction. All adults convicted of felonies for which the statutory maximum is more than one year may be sentenced to the State's prison system. The DOC also houses youthful offenders convicted as adults.

The DOC supervises over 70,000 offenders in the community through probation and parole. Offenders sentenced to probation by circuit court judges are supervised by the DOC, whereas district court probationers are supervised at the county level. Parolees are felons released from prison to community supervision. Any probationer who violates the terms of probation may be sentenced to prison by a judge. Parole violators may be returned to prison or sent to Community Re-entry Centers.

Also, the DOC maintains statistical information for research, oversees Michigan State Industries, which sells prisoner-produced goods to government and nonprofit organizations, and interacts with local government through the community corrections, county jail reimbursement, and enforcement of State jail rules.

Major Divisions and Programs

Correctional Facilities Administration. The division is responsible for the operation of all prisons and camps including the Special Alternative Incarceration program, or boot camp, the reception and classification process, and treatment and transfer of prisoners. Also within CFA are Michigan State Industries and the Bureau of Health Care Services.

Field Operations Administration. The division is responsible for State probation and parole supervision. It also oversees the Michigan Parole Board.

Operations Support Administration. This division is responsible for fiscal management, and legal affairs, which includes policy and hearings, internal audit, litigation, FOIA requests, and prisoner affairs. This unit also includes Human Resources, which is responsible for training and recruitment, personnel services, and the Equal Employment Opportunity Office.

Planning and Community Development Administration. This division is responsible for planning and local matters. This includes research, re-entry, the Office of Community Corrections, substance abuse, and county jail services.

Executive Bureau. This unit includes Legislative Affairs, risk assessment and quality improvement, and the Office of Public Information and Communications.
